CHANCE FOR NEXT YEAR'S BIG CAMP

Pleased with Maneuver Area Officers at Students' Camp Start Active Work. Four Such Camps Next Year. Chance for Gettysburg.

The students' military camp, now in progress south of town, promises next year to be largely attended and, if it can be secured for Gettysburg, will make a big feature for the summer. Over 4000 applications have been received for next year, 500 of which are from the Indian School at Carlisle.

Gettysburg has frequently been used as a base for military maneuvers and has always been found admirable territory for the purpose. When the big camp was held here in 1910 it was stated that the territory east of town would be ideal for permanent use for such purpose but that the land was too valuable for the government to purchase. Major McRae, in command of the present camp, said Tuesday evening that the territory to be used by the students this year is just right for maneuvers, having plenty of hills, woods and other features which contribute largely to the success of such work.

Starting with the preliminary maneuvers of patrol a scheme of progressive education will be carried out at Gettysburg during the coming weeks which will bring the students to a point of mapping out campaigns, meeting imaginary foes, discovering their movements and frustrating their designs. Regular Army infantry, cavalry, artillery and signal corps will accompany the students on these maneuvers while a hospital corps will demonstrate its work in the battles. The mornings only are devoted to this work and in the afternoons the students may specialize in any one of the Regular Army camps, taking up work under expert cavalry instructors, if they prefer that arm of the service, or any one of the other branches if their inclinations have that trend.

Every evening there will be a band concert at camp from seven to eight o'clock and Friday evenings a dance will be held in the camp for the students.

In the camp fifty per cent of the students have already had some military training, either in cadet schools or in the National Guard of one or other of the many states represented, and the early days of the camp see remarkable development so that the company is quickly taking the form of a well organized body of troops. Five Chinese students are among the men. Two are from the Boston Institute of Technology, and one each from Yale, Princeton and Columbia.

In discussing the plan of these camps one of the officers in charge said:

"The plan now being followed in the United States does not permit of a large standing army. This summer school system, if extended, will provide thousands of young men ready for volunteer service in case of war and, instead of having political ferment determine the officers for volunteer companies in such emergency, we will have a long list of capable men to man the companies. We hope next year to have four such camps in the country and the enrollment promises to be large, many signifying their intention to participate next year who had already made their plans for this summer when the camps were planned."

MYSTERIOUS FIRE AT EAST BERLIN

Two Barns Burned and Many Properties Threatened in Blaze of Unknown Origin at East Berlin. Hard Fight Finally Wins.

Two large barns on the farm of David Sell, near East Berlin, were destroyed by fire Tuesday morning shortly after 11 o'clock, entailing a loss of several thousand dollars. All of the cattle and farming implements were saved from the buildings with great difficulty and danger. The buildings burned are valued at about $2,000 each and were only recently erected.

When the fire was discovered by one of the members of the Sell family the flames and smoke were coming from one of the ventilators on the barn and the entire building appeared to be ablaze.

An alarm was given and the whole community responded and the fire was brought under control after two hours of hard work. Other buildings and dwelling houses in the vicinity were at one time in danger of being destroyed.

The greatest mystery concerns the origin of the fire, as no person was near the barn when the fire was discovered.

SERIOUSLY ILL FROM POISONING

Little Girl Finds Bottle on Pile of Rubbish and Drinks Contents with Serious Results. Was Evidently Poisonous Acid.

Pauline Shover, the little 5-year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Shover, Monterey, is in a critical condition as the result of drinking the contents of a bottle which she picked up late Monday afternoon.

The little girl was playing in company with her sisters and several other little children in the vicinity of her home, when she picked up from among a pile of refuse, a bottle containing a liquid, which she proceeded to drink.

Shortly afterward she became ill and started home. When she reached the house she dropped over unconscious. The child's mother summoned Dr. J. Charles Beck, who hurried to the Shover home and extracted the poison from the stomach of the unconscious child, but not before it had taken effect.

All night the child remained in an unconscious state and little hopes were entertained for her recovery. Tuesday morning she recovered sufficiently to relate where she obtained the bottle.

That the liquid which she drank was some sort of an acid was evident by the burns about the lips and mouth. Exactly what it was has as yet not been determined.

Though still in a serious condition she is expected to recover.

LAMAR FOUGHT AGAINST RUIN

Says He Tried to Force Financiers to Open Attack.

BACKS LAUTERBACH TALE

Wall Street Plunger Startles Lobby
Probers With His Frank Admissions.

Washington, July 9.—Following the declarations of Edward Lauterbach, a New York lawyer, that he was duped by David Lamar in negotiations with Wall street men regarding prescribing a probe of the "steel trust," Lamar appeared before the senate lobby investigating committee to make a statement.

Lamar surprised the committee with some of his bold statements.

Particularly did Lamar, sometimes referred to as the "Wolf of Wall Street," wish to explain Lauterbach's charges that Lamar had assured him Senator Stone and Speaker Clark were anxious for a "peaceful understanding" with Morgan and the United States Steel corporation interests.

Lamar opened his statement with a recital of the motives back of his relations with Lauterbach.

"I realize perfectly that my life and character are on trial before this committee" he began. He argued that his testimony and Lauterbach's had shown they were not engaged in any effort to get money from J. P. Morgan & Co. or other interests.

"I tell you what my motive was," said Lamar. "It was either to force these men to recognize the injustice of their attitude toward Lauterbach and myself or force them to come out into the open with the charges of blackmail they had circulated in New York for years against both of us. Ledyard and his associates had ruined many men and I was determined they should not ruin me."

Lamar said he knew Lewis Cass Ledyard was trying to "trip him" when he began telephoning representing himself as Representative Palmer, and then determined to fix up a "game" on Ledyard "to force the financial people into the open."

Lauterbach had testified that all his information about Senator Stone and Speaker Clark had come from Lamar.

Under a sharp fire of questions Lamar insisted that his only object was to bring about "just such a situation as this investigation."

"I am the one villain in Wall street," said Lamar bitterly. "All the rest are actuated by the highest motives and possess the highest ideals."

He declared the whole thing was "a major Wall street operation traveling on parallel lines," and insisted that he was "after" Ledyard, Cravath, Evarts, Lovett and the Morgans, steel trust, Union Pacific and other interests, and wanted to force them to an open attack.

"It was a favorite method of mine for producing an explosion when I wanted one," he added.

Lamar said he told Lauterbach the night after Representative Palmer had testified before the committee that he (Lamar) was the impersonator of Palmer and Representative Riordan. While in Pittsfield, Mass., Lamar said he telephoned to Lauterbach in Washington and told Lauterbach to go ahead and tell the committee the whole truth, and that the public hearing was precisely what Lamar had been wanting all along. He could not remember whether he told Lauterbach during this telephone conversation that he was the "mysterious man" in the case.

"Do you think the brand of infamy should be placed upon public servants who bargains with a great corporation for political advantage?" asked Senator Reed. "Not if the deal was in the public interest," replied Lamar.

"You did not hesitate to tell Lauterbach that Senator Stone and Speaker Clark were parties to the program which was conveyed to Ledyard?" "I did not hesitate."

"You had sent Lauterbach, your friend, a man sixty-eight years old, into a trap?" demanded Reed. "Yes, better fight in the open—than slow death," replied Lamar heatedly. "I sent Lauterbach into Ledyard's hands so that he would be completely in Ledyard's power and would give Ledyard reason for finally coming into the open."

There is no federal law under which Lamar could be prosecuted for impersonating congressmen over the telephone, according to the view of officials of the department of justice, after an examination of the statutes. It was the belief that the statute forbidding impersonation of government officers did not reach the case, because that law embraced only cases where intent to defraud could be shown.

RIVAL SUSPECTED IN GIRL'S DEATH

Men Had Agreement to Swim
Lake to Win Her.

ONE WROTE TO VICTIM

Letter Received After Tragedy Suggests Part Played by Another Suitor.

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., July 9.—Jealous between rival lovers of Miss Alice Crispell is the only motive to advance for the suspected murder of the girl, whose body was found floating in Harvey's lake, near a boat landing on the lake front, where she was last seen alive at 11:30 o'clock on the night of July 4, in the company of Herbert Johns, of Wilkes-Barre, who has been her sweetheart for two years past.

Harrison Cann, of Wilkes-Barre, and Herbert Johns were both Miss Crispell's suitors, and the authorities have learned that they entered into a sporting agreement by which the one who was first to swim Harvey's lake the largest inland lake in Pennsylvania, was to have the girl's attentions unclaimed by the other. Cann is looked upon as a jealous rival and the officials believe he may furnish a solution to the mystery.

From the Crispell family was obtained a letter which helps bear out this theory. The letter was written by Herbert Johns and mailed last Sunday. The letter forms a sort of an alibi for the prisoner, but the authorities answer this by the belief that he could have written the letter to help cover up his knowledge of the tragedy.

The letter was addressed to Miss Crispell, and in it Johns hints of the rival for the girl's attentions, also making mention of Cann, who is known as "Canny."

That Mrs. F. J. Weckesser, a cobbler, heard a girl scream at 11:30 o'clock on the night of July 4, the hour at which Johns left the girl, also helps confirm the theory that jealous rivalry may be a motive for the crime. Mrs. Weckesser declares that she thought the girl cried: "O, Charley! O, Charley!"

The authorities are now working on the clew that perhaps Cann, a suitor of the girl, might have been lying in wait along the lake front and that he attacked the girl and threw her into the water after Johns left because of a sudden illness, as he says.

Coroner James F. Marley is conducting an inquest today at Harvey's Lake, when the state will present the evidence it has woven about Herbert Johns.

District Attorney John H. Bigelow will put Johns in the sweat box and efforts will be made to make him tell all he knows.

APPROVES AUTO ACT

Increases Registration Fee in Pennsylvania and Provides Regulations.

Harrisburg, Pa., July 9.—The announcement was made here that Governor Tener had approved the Buckman automobile bill, a general motor vehicle act.

It increases the registration fee for pleasure vehicles of 35 to 50 horse-power from $10 to $15, and for vehicles of 50 horse-power and over from $15 to $20.

It also provides a system of fees for automobile trucks ranging from $3 for those of less than 4000 pounds freight of load and vehicle to $25 for 24,000 pounds, the latter being the maximum weight allowed. The width of motor vehicles is limited to 90 inches, except busses in cities, which may be 100 inches wide.

Registration fees after July 1 shall be one-half the yearly rate. The minimum limit in built-up sections where "Danger, Run Slow," signs are erected is increased from twelve to fifteen miles an hour.

The bill provides a general code for operation of motor vehicles based on the experience of the state highway department's automobile division in the last two years.

SON KILLS FATHER

Another Son Mortally Wounded by Infuriated Parent.

Central, S. C., July 9.—John Dobson, a farmer, fifty years old, died near home from wounds received in a revolver duel with his seventeen-year-old son.

It is said that the boy attempted to aid his mother, whom Dobson was mistreating. The father mortally wounded another son, who had taken no part in the difficulty. After the shooting the elder boy escaped, but later surrendered to the sheriff.

Lunatics Fight Fire.

Reading, Pa., July 9.—The 900 inmates of the South Mountain Insane Asylum, near Wernersville, were all thrown into excitement by a fire that destroyed an old roller mill on the premises. The 300 male inmates organized into a fire brigade, fought the flames and saved adjoining structures. The loss is $6000.

THE MAN IN THE ORIENT.

He Walks Ahead of His Wife to Guard
Her From Danger.

When husband and wife go travelling together in the orient the man walks in front, careless and free, and the woman walks behind, carrying the bundle. Therefore you say: "The oriental cares not for his women. He despises his wife and uses her as a beast of burden." Most orientals never get further than that. But if you are observant you go out in the jungle yourself, and you discover things. When you walk abroad there are difficulties and dangers. The paths are overgrown and thorny, creepers must be driven off, and buffaloes are ugly creatures.

In the villages are village dogs which snarl and snap. You are a man, yet you will be glad of some one to go in front of you with a hatchet to clear your way. No woman would walk in front, and the man must be free. Now you see the reason why the man walks in front. If you want to confirm it ask the Japanese, the Burman, goes in front of his wife for the same reason that the occidental goes behind from courtesy. If he continues to do so when it is unnecessary, as in towns where there are roads, it is because once formed is hard to break, east or west.—H. Fielding Hall in Atlantic Monthly.

Bar Harbor, Me., July 9.—Society here is buzzing with the announcement of the engagement of Miss Katherine Force to Henri Harnickell, a broker, of New York.

RESCUES MAN WITH DOG AS "BUOY"

Boy Saves Drowning Man With Help of Animal.

Atlantic City, N. J., July 9.—Using his dog "Spud" as a buoy, "Dorie" Leslie, seventeen years old, made a gallant rescue of Alfred Meyers, a Philadelphia cottager, from the ocean off New Hampshire avenue.

Meyers went into the surf for a dip. When fifty yards from shore he was caught in cross currents that sweep out around a series of jetties. The swimmer soon tired out and found he could make no headway and called for help.

The boy and dog were playing on the beach, but immediately responded, "Dorie" going into the water without waiting to remove his clothing, and "Spud" trailing close behind him. He had taught the dog to tow him about in the water, and so when they reached the side of the drowning man "Dorie" placed Meyers' hands on the dog's collar and headed him for the shore.

They had a tremendous struggle with the currents and for a time it seemed that they would be swept out through the old inlet channels and into a veritable railway where the currents join the rougher waters beyond, but "Dorie" used his head and managed to swing by with his "buoy" and burden and reach the shore.

DANIELS VISITS PHILADELPHIA

Inspects Navy Yard and Suggests Elaborate Improvements.

Philadelphia, July 9.—On his first visit here since he became a member of the cabinet, Secretary of the Navy Josephus Daniels came over from Washington for a tour of inspection of the League Island navy yard and the Naval Hospital and Home.

Secretary Daniels put to rest all rumors that he intended dismantling the navy yard and transferring the marines to other barracks and assured his inquirers that it was his intention to make substantial improvements.

The secretary said that all the marines would remain and that the quarters might have to be enlarged. That the secretary is favorably inclined toward Philadelphia as an ideal marine and naval base is considered certain by persons who accompanied him.

STRIKE DECISION DUE SATURDAY

ERIE QUILTS CONFERENCE

Negotiations Between Men and Railroads Fail—No Arbitration Call Is Made.

New York, July 9.—Fifty-two eastern railroads now face a strike of nearly 100,000 trainmen and conductors as a result of the total collapse of the peace conference which has been juggling with the gage of battle for the last six months. Ninety-four per cent of the conductors and trainmen have voted to strike.

The question of whether or not a strike that will affect 50,000 miles of railroad will actually be called will be determined Saturday, when a meeting of the general committee of the conductors and trainmen of the roads affected will be held in New York. If these committeemen vote at that meeting for a strike the strike will be called.

It was said that if a strike was called only a few days would elapse between the time of the announcement and the actual walkout.

The conference at which the vote was announced was that of the conference committee of managers of eastern railroads and a committee representing the Order of Railroad Conductors and the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen. The counting of the vote resulted as follows: For a strike, 76,683; against a strike, 4210.

When the conference convened the Erie railroad announced that it had withdrawn from the proceedings, on the ground that it would be unable to meet any advance which might result. This practically invites a strike on that road.

The Erie statement, signed by J. C. Stuart, vice president, says in part:

"Similar proceedings in the past have resulted in increased wages, and while it may be possible for some roads to meet these increases, the Erie railroad is not in position to do so at present. The wage increase demanded amounts to 25 per cent, or a total annual cost, on the basis of present figures, of practically $1,200,000."

The Erie says it is willing to consider wages and conditions of individuals but will not agree to any general increase to any class of employees at the sacrifice of needed safety appliances and improved equipment.

The increase in wages asked for averaged about 20 per cent per annum, or about $17,000,000.

Among other things the demands included:

Pay of conductors on electric and steam trains fixed at 2.90 cents a mile; baggagemen, 1.87 a mile; flagmen or rear brakemen, 1.80; brakemen, 1.74.

These figures are for runs of 155 miles or more. On shorter runs conductors to get $4.50 a day; baggagemen, $2.90 a day; rear brakemen, $2.50, and brakemen, $2.70.

Trainmen to be paid overtime for short train runs of more than eight hours.

Minimum wages fixed at $135 a month for conductors, $87 for baggagemen, $84 for rear brakemen and $81 for brakemen.

Rates fixed for the freight service as follows: Through and irregular freight conductors, 4.18 cents a mile; flagmen, 2.81 cents, and brakemen, 2.78 cents.

In all freight, mixed and mine service, including pusher or helper service, 100 miles or less, ten hours or less, shall constitute a day's work; on runs of 100 miles or less, overtime shall be paid for all time in excess of ten hours, and on runs or more than 100 miles overtime shall be paid for that time used in excess of the time necessary to complete the trip at an average speed of ten miles an hour. The working time of trainmen shall begin at the time they are required to report for duty.

FLYING BOATS BEGIN CRUISE

Three Daring Airmen Start From Chicago on Nine Hundred Mile Trip.

Chicago, July 9.—Three flying boats got away on the projected 900-mile cruise from this city to Detroit.

Tony Jannus, of St. Louis, was the first of the daring airmen to start his hydro-aeroplane rose gracefully and started southeastward toward Michigan City. Beckwith Havens, of Fishkill, N. Y., followed ten minutes later. After half an hour's delay Walter Johnson, of New York, started his machine, but developed engine trouble almost immediately and was compelled to return to the slip at Grant park.

An immense crowd witnessed the start of the remarkable cruise and cheered the airmen. Jannus expected to follow the Lake Shore line to Michigan City, while Havens announced that he would steer his craft by compass.

Attack on Woman by Negro.

Washington, July 9.—The attack made upon Mrs. May Jorgensen, a sister-in-law of Senator Polk Dexter, of Washington, by an unidentified negro, has stirred the local police to greater activity and has done a good deal to give fresh impetus to the movement on foot to provide heavier penalties for attempted attacks upon women.

A Detective Story

By ALBERT KENYON

What makes the detective business so fascinating is that it is a perpetual puzzle. Then there are so many ingenious methods of perpetrating swindles and concealing all kinds of crime. A detective never knows when he is going to light on a new and ingenious device.

But it is not in such cases that I, now twenty years a detective, have found the keenest relish. The murderer is not in a condition of mind to think out a problem coolly. He is in an abnormal condition. For my part I could never understand how any one could commit a crime the discovery of which would bring a dreadful punishment. Nevertheless criminals often work out very intricate problems.

It is when two or three persons above the average in the social scale and in education conspire together that the most ingenious devices develop. Perhaps this is because each gives the other courage. That is what makes hunting down a gang of counterfeiters so interesting. They are usually intelligent men and work together. Yet there is one thing they all lose sight of or disregard—the fact that they are always caught in the end.

The most interesting surprise I ever encountered was in unearthing one of these counterfeiting gangs. I say surprise, for it was no credit to me that I made the discovery. Indeed, had I not made a criminal of myself I should never have got on to them. I was put on the case in this way: Some counterfeit twenty dollar bills were being put into circulation. They seemed to come to the surface in a small town in Kansas and drift eastward. At any rate, one of them was traced to this place, and I was sent out there to investigate.

There is always a difference in towns, some being inhabited in the main by good, religious people, others being notoriously bad. N., the point where the counterfeit bill came from, was neither good nor bad, but not long before my arrival a party had begun to assemble every evening to play poker. The game or series of games had been started by two or three men who had recently come to the town, and a number of citizens had gradually come to take a part in the proceedings. They were played in the room sometimes of one, sometimes of another, member of the party.

I went into the town ostensibly to buy cattle. A day or two after my arrival I was informed by a man whose acquaintance I had made that there was a poker party in a room upstairs. He said he was going up to look on, and I told him I would go with him if he would introduce me. The truth is I have suffered all through my life from the gambling passion. Having a fortune, I lost it, and that was what threw me into the detective business. I should not have gone to watch this game, for I ran a great risk of being drawn into it.

I found a party of good fellows, who received me cordially, and it was not long before I called for some chips. I soon lost what good money I had about me and to recoup yielded to a temptation to use a counterfeit bill that I had brought with me for a sample. The moment I did it on the table I saw two of the players give each other a meaning look; then both turned their eyes on me. A cold chill ran down my back, for it looked as if I were detected on the start. But my business had schooled me in concealing my feelings and I returned the men's glances with a blank stare.

Doubtless it was this that caused one of them to make a mistake. He gave me a crafty look. I returned it with one equally crafty.

I had no idea what this meant. I happened to win the bill I had put up and something besides. Then caution got the better of my passion, and I played only so long as I could play on what I had won. I saw the men who had noticed the bill go on the table watching me. Evidently I didn't fill the bill of what they had expected of me, for I got no more confidential glances. One thing I noticed—several twenty dollar bills came out from those men on the same bank as the one I had used for a stake and passed into the hands of other players. One of them fell to me. The man who had given me the meaning glance at once asked me for it, offering four "fives" for it. But I told him I would rather keep it. However, knowing some game was going on other than the open one on the table, I gave it to him. This seemed to allay a slight suspicion of me that had come to him.

It was the producing of these twenty dollar bills, all on the same bank, and their passing into the hands of others that gave me an explanation of the mystery. Counterfeiters were using the game to shove the spurious money on to such citizens of the place as were drawn into their poker game. Immediately I put out all the bills I had brought with me as samples, and this won me the confidence of the counterfeiters. Nevertheless they seemed puzzled, and I determined to act at once. I always go about armed, and drawing a brace of pistols, I covered the two men I suspected and said:

"You are under arrest."

There was the usual pretended astonishment, but I held them to their seats and directed a waiter who had just brought a tray of drinks to tell the landlord to summon the police. He did so, and within half an hour I land ed my men in jail.

RAISING CALVES A PAYING BUSINESS

We feed our calves whole milk for eight days, then skimmilk, a gallon morning and night up to five months old, with a small handful of finely ground cornmeal and clean hay, what the calf will eat up clean daily, says D. Ott of Pennsylvania in Orange Judd Farmer. The cost for feeding the calf in this manner for the first year is $15 for milk, $3 for cornmeal and $8 for hay and pasture, or a total of $26. The cost for the second year for hay, silage and pasture is $23 and for the third year for hay, silage and pasture $37. It thus costs to bring a calf to the age of three years and up to 1,600 pounds live weight $82. At this age and weight, on general average, I get 9 cents a pound live weight, which means $144, or a net balance of $61. Cattle fed in this way will thrive and make nice returns for their keep, leaving the manure for the labor. Many people are disposed to sell the young calves for veal or as young stock.

The Shorthorn breed of beef cattle is distinguished by its great bulk on a comparatively small frame, the offal being very light and the bone small and fine. As producers of prime beef the Shorthorn is second to no other breed and has long been a winner both in the show ring and on the butcher's block. It is noted for its easy fattening propensities and for its ability to transmit its good qualities. Shorthorn cattle remove the coarseness of the meat produced by cattle which are descended on the female side from inferior live stock. The head shown is a good type of Shorthorn.

I find from my figures that bringing calves up to full age not only brings me greater profit than to veal the calves, but it greatly increases the quantity of meat available for human consumption. I find further that if I sell my calves at the end of the first year there is a profit of $16. If I keep them until they are two years old there is a profit of $38, and if I keep them until the end of the three years there is a profit of $61. Thus it is seen that kept to maturity the net gain is much greater, besides a far larger quantity of edible meat made from fully matured beef is to be obtained. I think that veal calves should not be sold, but raised to maturity, thus not only will the producer profit, but all mankind.

The Hard Milking Cow.
When a cow is found to be a hard milker examination of the end of the teat will commonly disclose the presence of a warty growth in the opening of the duct or a sore covered by a scab which has to be removed before milking becomes possible. Use of a nonsterilized milking tube in such cases invariably aggravates the condition by introducing germs of infection which lead to destructive mammitis of the gland. Proper treatment consists in removing the warty growth by rimming out with a small, narrow bladed, sharp, sterilized scalpel. After treatment consists in soaking the teat twice daily in a warm saturated solution of boric acid and once or twice daily applying a little balsam of Peru to the sore. Do not use a milking tube after the operation. If the milk does not tend to ooze and drip away, so keeping the wound open, strip out a little several times a day for that purpose. In the other condition, where a sore exists, first heal the sore by the above advised treatment; then, if milking is difficult and the milk sprays at milking time, it will be necessary to cut through the obstruction at the end of the teat, in four different directions, by means of a teat bistoury, and then continue the treatment with boric acid solution and balsam.—Dr. A. S. Alexander.

Cleaning the Churn.
The woman who always rinses her churn in warm water, then thoroughly washes it (without soap) immediately after churning and places it in the open air to dry and never puts the lid on when not in use will have no churn problems. A churn that is not perfectly clean will taint the butter. A churn that has not been used or has been neglected can be sweetened by rinsing with limewater. Rapidly operate the churn so that the water is forcibly thrown into every part after the churn has been thoroughly washed. If limewater is not at hand soda can be substituted. When having trouble with dairy products go over each detail, and the difficulty can usually be detected. Always remember "a small leak will sink a great ship."—Rural New Yorker.

FROST HURT CROPS

State Zoologist Surface Receives Reports from Various Sections.

State Zoologist H. A. Surface, who has been receiving reports of the condition of the fruit crops the last few weeks, says that the frosts of April 20 and May 10 were so severe that in many sections of the State the apple, pear and peach crops will be only a small part of what they were in 1912. Some of the orchards will not have one fifth of their annual yield and in others only the fact that trees had been kept in good condition will cause them to be productive at all. Dr. Surface says that his reports cover some of the best apple growing counties and that the late cold snaps will cause loss of hundreds of dollars and that a number of orchards which have just begun to bear will make very small returns on the investment this year.
